

Abstract : Fluorocarbon polymer films with regular void structure are prepared by using a patterning-fusion bonding process. The critical voltage necessary for the build-up of the “macro-dipoles” in the inner voids observed in the experiments agrees well with the calculated value. The fabricated films show improved thermal stability of the d_{33} coefficients.