

Abstract: Taking the guest-host DR1/PMMA film for example, detrapping and compensation effect for space and dipole charge of molecular dipole polymer electret with nonlinear optical property was studied by means of isothermal surface potential decay method. The properties of space and dipole charge were investigated with the open-circuit and the short-circuit thermally stimulated discharge current spectra