

Abstract: In this paper, basic properties of polymeric electret air (or gas) filter materials applied in environmental clean-up engineering are reviewed. The present state and prospects for their application are discussed